An Approaching Marriage.

It is always this way. The strangers who comes within our gates, ever admire our beautiful girls, and frequently, as in this case, admiration passes into love, and we are forced to see the young girl pass into other keeping, and go elsewhere to found a home.

On Wednesday evening, March 15 1899, at the Presbyterian church, at 8:30 o'clock, Rev E. C. Gordon will unite in marriage Rebekah Gay, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Richard Field, to L. Fred Evans, of Kansas City.

The bridesmaids will be Misses Mary McCoy, of Independence, and Bell Gordon of this city. The groomsmen are to be Messrs. Frank Ferguson of Kansas City and Frank Goddell, of Independence.

The ushers will be Messrs C. B. Goodwin of Marshall, Charles Lyons and Horace Bolton, of this city, Clifford Gordon and Pascal Parker, of Kansas City, and MacDonald Chaney, of Independence.

It will be a very beautiful wedding. The bride, who is a lovely, petite brunette girl, will have her beauty enhanced by the elegant bridal robe of white satin. There is no more lovable, accomplished girl in our city, her friends being numbered by all who know her. She is accomplished as an artist and musician, besides possessing all those womanly traits which mark the perfect woman. We regret to resign her to our neighboring town, but she will be acquisition to society.

The groom is a resident of Kansas City, and from his numerous visits here for some time past, we were in expectation of this happy denouement. He has a responsible position in Emery, Bird & Thayer's, and a lady who has known him long says, he is worthy of the charming wife he won.

The bridesmaids will wear airy robes of white silk mill, with belts and collars of soft blue satin ribbon which will enhance their girlish beauty.

They will be "At Home" after April 1st, at 815, North Union street Independence, Mo.—From Lexington News.
